

Dear Hero,

This weekend I am playing in soccer tournament with my friends. None of us would be able to do that without your service. You have selflessly dedicated yourself to your country and that is why I want to thank you. I know that I will probably never be able to thank you enough, but I want you to know how much you mean to me. My dad has been in the Army for 28 years and he knows how hard military life can be. My brother is currently training to be in the military, too. Also, the struggles that I have had to deal with as an Army Brat amount to nothing compared to your sacrifice. You have left family members behind to protect millions of people you don't even know- some from America and others from different countries. Thank you again for your courage, sacrifice, and dedication. I'm praying for you.
